

Interdisciplinary CEPA Lecture Series 2016-17

The Department of Education Studies promotes the interdisciplinary approach to our research and thinking in education. This year we're pleased to announce the following interdisciplinary lectures on the themes of purpose of education, inequality in education, and education policy. The lectures will take place between 1pm and 2pm on following dates in LTC-A on Hope Park Campus at Liverpool Hope University. No reservation is needed and everyone is welcomed to attend.

- 1 Nov Problematising the Notion of the Student as Customer (Dr Richard Budd)
- 8 Nov The problem of freedom in a dream on equal society (Dr Piotr Zamojski)
- 15 Nov Character and resilience in recent education policy discourse (Dr Konstanze Spohrer)
- 22 Nov Social inequality, cultural politics and the fate of the public school (Dr Joseph Maslen)
- 29 Nov Faith Schools reinforce the religious factions in our society (Dr Cathal O'Siochru and Prof Luca Balugani)
- 6 Dec Influence of metrics in Higher Education: Policy and Practice (Dr Catherine O'Connell)
- 10 Jan The role of learning in contemporary European policy: a governmentality perspective (Dr Naomi Hodgson)
- 17 Jan Excellence and Exclusion in Higher Education (Dr Namrata Rao)
- 24 Jan Why the language of learning threatens the true goals of education (Dr Joris Vlieghe)
- 14 Feb Separate but equal? The philosophy of women's education from the 1660s to the 1960s. (Dr Rosie Germain)
- 21 Feb Higher Education: public or private good? (Professor Bernard Longden)
- 28 Feb For Citizenship, Society or Empire? Elementary Education from 1870 (Dr Jody Crutchley)
- 21 Mar From radicals to partners: Policies and the changing role of students in contemporary Higher Education (George Mindano, University of Kent)
- 28 Mar University students and society since 1750: a relationship of harmony or discord? (Dr Rosie Germain)
- 25 Apr Recognising and troubling microaggressions in higher education (Remi Salisbury, Leeds University)
- 2 May The teaching of social history in British schools in the twentieth century (Laura Carter, KCL)